A NEW AWARDS STRUCTURE FOR 2025

For 20 years, Scrip has been the pre-eminent Awards for the biopharma industry. To build on this legacy into its third decade, we are introducing for 2025 two pathways to reaching the prestigious shortlist announced in September.

Editor's Choice Awards

For these categories, the finalists will be handpicked by our esteemed editorial and analyst teams, to highlight the outstanding and innovative contenders whose achievements in the qualifying year demand their place on the shortlist.

Open Awards

These categories are open, as always, for submissions from those who know that their achievements deserve wider recognition among their industry peers.

All competing entries will be rigorously evaluated by an independent Judging Panel of senior industry experts, ensuring fairness and recognition for the most impactful innovations.

The shortlist for the Editor's Choice Awards will be chosen by the team at Scrip based on the published criteria using metrics taken from the Norstella suite of databases plus input from our internal network of analysts and subject matter experts.

For these categories, the successful nominees identified as being the very best fit for each of these categories will be invited to enter the Awards with their place on the shortlist already assured.

For the remaining categories, entries will remain open to all who wish to enter.

In keeping with previous years, while we accept entries there will be no published shortlist for the Pharma Company of the Year and the Lifetime Achievement Award.

This category is aimed at clinical-stage oncology firms pioneering new approaches in the treatment of cancer that have shown proof of concept in early (Phase I or II) clinical trials and have candidates moving forward in the development pathway.
